

What Is the Interhash Council (IC), What Does It Do and Who are Its Members?

What Is the Interhash Council?

- The Interhash Council is a group of dedicated international hashers who have each attended numerous Interhashes and have directly participated in the organization and management of at least one of them. In total, members of the Council have over 580 years of Hashing experience and have led or worked on the 21 Interhashes and numerous other regional hash events.
- The IC is not a closed shop of self-elected individuals. Anyone with the IH experience and commitment can apply to join. The Council is very international in its membership and made up of about 10 different nationalities. It meets every two years at the InterHash venue. Meetings are usually open to any hasher to observe and contribute as appropriate.
- Members of the IC do not receive payments for their services, nor do they have their expenses reimbursed.

What Does the InterHash Advisory Group Do?

- The IC advises, provides guidance, and oversees the procedures of each Interhash to ensure the efficiency and success of the event for all participants.
- The IC is purely an advisory body of former InterHash managers. It takes no direct control of the event nor has any direct responsibilities for it.
- Members of the IC do, however, manage certain traditional InterHash events such as the Down-Down competition and oversees Interhash elections to assure they are fair and reflect participants' expressed wishes regarding the venue for the immediately following Interhash.
- On request from the Interhash Organizing Committee, the IC can intervene with local authorities to support the Interhash Organizing Committee or when invited can try to rectify any mismanagement issues that might arise.

- The IC endeavors to inform the Interhash Organizing Committee of past Interhash experiences (good and bad) and to help those committees avoid many of the pitfalls of running a very large and complex event.
- The IC prepares and updates guidelines to assist future Interhash bidders in the development of their comprehensive plans for presentation to Interhash participants prior to their vote on the next Interhash venue.
- Prior to a bidder's presentation, the IC reviews a standardized bidder plan, provides feedback to each potential bidder, and certifies that the bidder has met all of the planning requirements and is authorized to make their presentation to InterHash participants. This assures that all bidders have conducted the appropriate due diligence in developing their bid, and that the information contained therein is true, comprehensive, and provides participants with the information they require to vote on the next Interhash venue.
